The institution provides the facilities for ICT class room in which various faculties are conducting the class so that it is becoming easy for the faculties to educate the students by showing various images, free software tools and videos in class. Chem-Draw makes it easy to convert compound names to the corresponding structures- simply copy and paste the name into the “convert name to structure. Anti-plagiarism software often includes a percentage of comparisons or matches. It is usually used to scan content and gives teachers a percentage of plagiarism. Students are often required to adhere to the percentage level set by universities, so using a plagiarism checker can ensure that they have met the requirements before handing in their papers.
